

THE "EATH-CHAR" TO SAVE LIFE

Gin and Beer.
Wonderful Aphorisms.
Too Cheap Money is Bad.
To Get Out, or In, Think.

—By Arthur Brisbane

WOMEN "DRY" in Washington, led by Mrs. Peabody, tell Congress that drunkenness, because of beer, was worse in old days than now.

Ninety per cent of drunkenness before prohibition was beer drunkenness," said Mrs. Peabody. Prohibition, ladies are sincere, in every way admirable, but they are mistaken. They don't drink beer, never did probably, and would not know as much as any bartender would know. He could tell them that while: an gin cause drunkenness, crime and murder. After a murder the police find a whiskey bottle, not a beer bottle.

Mrs. Higginson, who will soon live in the White House and would like to see prohibition a success, says it has taught young girls how to drink gin. That is not an improvement on beer.

Our ancestors, killing mammoths and other big animals, probably thought those would always be man's most dangerous enemies. Now we know that our real enemies, germs of cholera, typhoid, influenza, diphtheria, etc., are too small to be seen with the naked eye. Furthermore, Prof. Shilkin, learned Russian biologist, says the aphorisms, a new hard word, meaning "invisible life," are the foundation of all conscious existence.

These units of "invisible life" exist from planet to planet, and exist throughout all space, but men will never see them, for they are infinitely smaller than the smallest wave lengths of visible light, which mark the limits of our sight.

More than a hundred kinds of virus that cause our worst diseases must also remain invisible, forever.

"Forever" is a big word. At present we can see nothing smaller, in the microscope or otherwise, actually than an object the length of four hundred millionths, or the twenty-five millionth part of one inch.

In spite of prediction you may be sure that, as primitive man wiped out the mammoth, so man, bigger than himself, will wipe out the invisible life.

Scientific man will actually see, by some process of chemistry and physics, the friendly aphorisms, and eliminate our virus enemies.

Your government, wishing to have one hundred and fifty million dollars for one year, offered only 1 of 1 per cent interest. The offering was over-subscribed thirty times.

Uncle Sam was actually offered four thousand million at 4 of 1 per cent interest. Some bidders asked for more of the notes than they expected and wanted to make sure of getting enough. Nevertheless the offer is gigantic. Some foolishly imagine that it is a good sign.

It is the worst possible sign, showing that hundreds and thousands of millions of people in this country, owners afraid to invest in ways that would create labor, wealth, property and pay a good return. It is preferred to keep money tied up at lowest interest rates.

There are more than twenty thousand millions tied up in government bonds, in which taxpayers may in interest nearly a billion annually.

Government should call in ten billions of bonds, and in their place good American money paying no interest, saving the taxpayers four billion dollars a year and not increasing government indebtedness, therefore, not weakening its credit, since it would owe ten billions in currency instead of ten billions in interest-bearing bonds.

By the time those that now hoard the bonds had finished interest ten billions, you would see business begin to move upward.

Two long-term prisoners saved through iron bars, escaped from the "house of the living dead" in the section of Sing Sing prison, and everybody wonders how they could do it. There is no doubt about it. The prisoners thought and planned for years of escape, and thought of nothing else. The jailers thought of many other things, only occasionally thinking of the prisoners.

If you want to accomplish anything, keep your mind on THAT thing. It is a good rule, whether you plan to get out of a prison or into a hall of fame.

The Lusitania, sunk by a German submarine during the war, has been located on the bottom of the ocean off the Irish coast. Divers plan to go down after it in a month. It is worth getting to see ten million dollars' worth of gold, in the ship's hold, and it is said to be gold, and its hold on men.

Divers will find the jacinths, rusted and rotted, and they will find bones of men and women picked here long ago by fishes, not worth the digging. The gold when they get to it will be as good as lost.

Betrayer to Jail Rather Than Wed

New City, N. Y., Dec. 13 (AP)—Sidney Herbert Homewood, debutant riding master branded as the betrayer of Charlotte Gibson, social register, today stood in the shadow of a star's prison.

Homewood faced a maximum penalty of five years and a fine of $1000 when he appeared in Rockland County Supreme Court for sentence.

And still he refused to take the step which would automatically suspend sentences—marriage to the girl who will soon be a mother.

"Everybody thinks she got a bad deal," he said. "What about me?"

"I don't know," he said. "I know that I can stand up and take it."

Homewood dismissed the idea of marriage with the society girl.

"I'd sooner spend the rest of my life in prison," he asserted.

The six-month sentence, N.Y. driver, driven ashore at Narragansett, during a storm in February, 1927, and firmly embedded there since, is the cause of a suit filed by the New York Times in Dedham court today.

The railroad alleges that the being, considerably lightened by being, was pushed back to the tracks of the line, was operated by the road, but he was not.

The railroad seeks damages from Ballard E. Ebbett of Quincy, named as the owner, and waits for sentence.

The case will be heard tomorrow in Suffolk county court, which has no jurisdiction in such a case.

Proportions were converted into small gains, such as United Air, General Electric, General Motors and Du Pont.

American Telephone and Telegraph, American Express, American Can and Case showed slight losses.

Berlin Scientists Can See Hope of Cure for Cancer

(Copyright, 1932, by International News Service)

Berlin, Dec. 13—A charge of 250,000 volts of electricity were shot through a human body in a Berlin laboratory today in one of the most sensational experiments in the history of science.

The man who voluntarily subjected himself to this amazing experiment was near death with cancer, described as a "hopeless case."

Scientists believe now his life has been saved as a result of today's electrical experiment.

The two German scientists who conducted the experiment, Prof. Ludwig Hildebrandt, chief of the Berlin Radium Institute, and Dr. Heinrich Beck, of the Berlin Institute of Cancer Research, had at last found a cure for cancer.

"100 TONS OF RADIUM"

The electric charge, greatest ever created by man, was directed to be the equivalent of over 100 tons of radium in the cancer treatment.

The experiment was carried out in the same laboratory where Dr. Fritz Lunge and Otto Brach had long spent their lives.

Using the same apparatus invented by these two scientists for studying the atom, Prof. Hildebrandt and Dr. Beck decided to make the first step into a new and unexplored field.

RESOLUTIONS TO PAY U. S. DEBT REJECTED

Chamber of Deputies Committees Hear Herriot, Then Vote

The Debt Situation

Openly acting in concert, Great Britain and France today rejected the United States' demand that Thursday's war debt payments be made, without strings or reservations.

In a new note to Secretary of State Stimson the British government declared that regardless of the American interpretation, Britain was bound to consider Thursday's payment as the first step toward a thoroughgoing reconsideration of the debt problem.

In Paris the foreign office made public a list of reservations that the installment be considered as the first payment under a revised "Daguerre" schedule.

In addition, Herriot warned that failure to revise the war debt schedule, which France, the Lusitania Treaty and again demand, reservations from the German government.

Chief of them is the insistence that the installment be considered as the first payment under a revised "Daguerre" schedule.

Herriot, who was asked whether he was convinced that Great Britain would exercise pressure such as the seizure of property, said: "I already is a tariff war."

The state of our treasury does not permit the payment of 500,000,000 francs, and we cannot make any concessions in the domain of agriculture or any other domain.

There is only one solution: A frank and open refusal without any kind of reservation.

GREEN RECOMMENDS FORCING VOTE ON DRY REPEAL

GARNER ACTION COMMITTEE BY R. I. GOVERNOR-ELECT

Theodore Francis Green, who put Rhode Island into the Democratic column and was himself elected Governor in the extraordinary political turn-over of a month, declared today that he prohibited the action of the committee of the "Lone Duck" since the time of Governor "Big" Flynn nearly 20 years ago.

The extent of the tremendous victory can be measured by the fact that Governor-elect Green overhauled public sentiment of this country as they are.

Green will take office next month as the first Democratic Governor in the history of the State over 20 years ago.

The mandate of the people was very clear, said Governor-elect Green in the first substantial statement made by him since his triumphant election.

"The people desire a change from the administration and from prohibition," "Speaker" Garner has proven himself a man of action.

"He should be showered with untold praise because his was an act of statesmanship in presenting the issue of prohibition repeal without evasion or equivocation."

"Much as we may regret the action of the Congress, we know that he has thus forced the proper settlement of this issue, if not in this then in the regular session of the incoming Congress. That Congress will vote for repeal. The authority over the liquor traffic should be vested in the independent states, which are the proper instincts of the people."

"The mandate from the people was overwhelming. There can be no question of its intensity or its sincerity. I do not wish to be critical of those members of Congress who voted out of their personal conviction or in compliance with what they believed to be the platform on which they were chosen in the last preceding election. I am sorry, however, that they could not have accepted the verdict of Nov. 8 as conclusive on the measure to guide their decision at present."

LAME DUCK MUST GO
The Lane Duck Congress should be abolished. The system is not fair to them, and it certainly is not fair to the country. The people have spoken their judgment, yet the Lane Duck Congress slings marks time until its end approaches and while there are many important problems pressing for decision.

The Lane Duck session may have been altogether satisfactory in the eyes of the stage coach, when transportation to Washington from the remote sections of the country was long and uncomfortable. But the times and the conditions have since changed. There is not today any requirement or need of excuse for the Lane Duck Congress.

The prediction, that the Norris resolution for abolition of the Lane Duck Congress will be adopted without hesitation by the incoming Legislature of Massachusetts, made today by Henry L. Shattuck, treasurer of the University, and who was for several years the outstanding member of that Legislature.

"This issue," he said, "was submitted to the people of Massachusetts under the public opinion act. The prop. of this State out of their approval of a million signatures over the world teaches it occurred on the latter day of a long and bitter war. It was shown to Joseph Smith by founder of Divine revelation."

Further, on the Christmas night of April 4 there was no darkness in the Western hemisphere, the Book of Mormon predicts.

"The mandate from the people was overwhelming. There can be no question of its intensity or its sincerity. I do not wish to be critical of those members of Congress who voted out of their personal conviction or in compliance with what they believed to be the platform on which they were chosen in the last preceding election. I am sorry, however, that they could not have accepted the verdict of Nov. 8 as conclusive on the measure to guide their decision at present."

MAZE OF APPARATUS
In their huge laboratory in a German electric plant, amidst gigantic isolators, a maze of condensers and beside an enormous generator, the two scientists erected a small cabin, about five feet square in one corner. Over the cabin towered a gigantic cathodic tube resembling the barrel of a steam boiler.

The patient, Heinrich Busch, a farmhand 35 years of age, was conducted to a chair on an elevated platform in the little cabin. Before him was a plate on which he laid his diseased arm.

Meanwhile, the air was being pumped out of the cathodic tube, creating an absolute vacuum within. Dr. Busch and Lange adjusted the apparatus while nurses did in white quieted the patient.

Then curtains were let down on these sides of the cabin, while the fourth was left open. In front of this was a huge steel wall containing a thick plate glass window.

RUM FLEET SAILS FOR BOSTON DEFYING GRAND JURY PROBE

BLONDE EYES PET PARTY IN KISS SUIT

Had No Part in Her Life, She Says in Plea for $15,000 Verdict

Petting parties played no part in the life of Anna Gutowski, 20, of Mt. Hope st., Roslindale, who asks $15,000 for injuries received in an auto crash allegedly caused by a kiss.

So she testified in Suffolk Superior Court today, and long grilling by the attorney for Henry O'Toole of New York, formerly of Philadelphia, Roslindale, the man she is suing, failed to shake her assertion.

The blonde, who fainted yesterday under cross-examination, causing adjournment of the trial, closed her testimony today by showing Judge Qua her teeth, broken in the auto crash.

"I never kissed him. I never went on petting parties with anyone. I always told my mother where I was when I went out in the evening."

That was the story she told and persistently clung to, under today's ordeal of questioning by Atty. H. J. Coffey, representing O'Toole.

BLUE HILLS CRASH

The accident occurred last January on Lincoln st., Mt. Hope, where the Blue Hills, the car crashing into a tree when, according to the girl, O'Toole tried to kiss her and she resisted. She suffered a concussion of the brain, the broken teeth and other injuries.

She testified the road was a winding one but not say how narrow it was, she later said she saw the car twice she saw the speedometer register "50."

"How fast was it going when it left the road?" asked the lawyer.

"I don't know," she replied. "I was fighting to keep him from kissing me."

She testified she told O'Toole to "get out of my car."

"He took his hands off the wheel and put his arms around me," she continued, indicating that was his answer to her plea to go more slowly.

"He went off the road and hit the tree, and I don't remember any more."

"Q—Was he trying to kiss you when the car went off the road?"

A—Yes.

"Q—Were his eyes turned toward you?"

A—Yes. He had one on the wheel and the other on the left.

DENIES PET PARTIES

Q—Did he ever take you to petting parties?

A—No.

Q—Was there any reason why you did not want your folks to know you went on petting parties?

A—I never went on petting parties.

Q—Was there any reason why your folks shouldn't know if you did?

A—I always told them where I was going.

Q—Between Confession and Communion, as you said it was, would it be wrong to go out on a party?

A—I thought he was talking me home.

Q—Well, wouldn't it be wrong to go out on a party?

A—Who said I went on a party? I never went on a party.

She said she saw no suits on the road just before the crash. O'Toole had testified that the lights of an auto car blinded him, raising the crash. He denies trying to kiss the girl.

NO KISS IN CAR FOR HER

There is no jury in the case, so it was for Judge Qua's benefit that Miss Gutowski said "Ah" and wrinkled her mouth so he could examine her teeth. The court stenographer held up a drop-light to assist.

Warren Boice of the Chamber of Commerce cafeteria told of the girls being out for a few weeks. She is now working for a chain store concern.

Miss Gutowski was dressed in black today and she gave her testimony in a voice so low that spectators could barely hear. During the cross-examination, tears came to her eyes at times, but she quickly recovered.

NINE SHIPS HEAD FOR COAST OF BAY STATE

Meanwhile U. S. Moves to Crush Huge Liquor Plot

Nine heavily-laden rum ships are headed here from Canada today in what might be considered bold defiance of federal grand jury proceedings expected to indict 40 to 45 men in a huge Boston liquor-running plot.

The ships were loaded in St. Pierre and Miquelon.

News of their coming leaked out of a Montreal liquor headquarters while the grand jury here prepared in listen to stories of wire-tapping, shut-down raids and other methods of government agents in the collection of evidence against the Boston ring.

These former members of the alleged rum ring, their lives carefully guarded by the government, stood ready to assist Robert W. Coyne, head of the investigating force, and Eliza D. Stone, assistant U. S. attorney, who will present the evidence to the jury.

At least three Boston men and officials of a large Canadian distillery are due to come under fire in the grand jury hearing.

Details of headquarters in a Bangs Bix hotel, where intercepted telephone calls were the means of page after page of governmental reports, will also be heard in the quest for indictments.

At least three groups of government radio experts whipped message out of the air at portable stations set up in Revere, Sagamore and Barnstable, Mass.

The messages revealed that movements of government ships were well known to the rum runners. They also heard radio instructions from agents on land to rum ships at sea and replies of the seafarers to the land agents.

Huge shipments of liquor were allowed to land unmolested during part of the investigation. The object was along the theory of "a cat playing with a mouse," move that served to make the rum buyers uneasy.

Among the more startling details of the investigation were the visits to Boston of agents for large Canadian distilleries, in keen competition for the Boston and Massachusetts trade.

FRENCH NOTE

"The government of the French republic takes note of the reply of the Secretary of State dated December 15, 1923, in which the government of the United States admits the possibility of examining the French plan and of making a request for revision and for the taking of this request into consideration by the American Congress. The American government has agreed to examine the possibility of revising a regime henceforth incompatible with the legal and factual situation created by the new situation of the Ruhr. The request of President Hoover, as well as with the acts which have been taken by the American government as a result of which the negotiations have been suspended."

"The French government will not refuse to examine the request of December 15, 1923, if it is to be made in the form of a request to be arrived at."

launched an intensive attack upon its decision to pay with reserves.

"What matters is the entire structure of international debts," said the Archbishop of Canterbury.

He says the United States or the French taxpayer will be obliged to support the entire burden.

"Contracts should be respected, but they should be cancelled. The contracts should not be permitted to evade responsibility for the debt," he said.

President Hoover said that the memorandum would improve Germany. Germany is worse off today than before the memorandum.

President Hoover said that the memorandum would improve the position of the United States. "The United States today are on the verge of bankruptcy."

British Note Stands by Cancellation Plan

London, Dec. 13 (INS)—The British government today made public a note demanding that the United States Government should accept cancellation of the war debt instalment of $1,000,000,000.

This fourth note, which was made public while the British cabinet was meeting, was the first step in the development in the fighting dispute over the war debt.

American-British war debt negotiations have been continuing since it was stated in positive terms that the British government had reached its decision.

The new note, however, there has been no change in the basic British position. The British government will pay with payments to be made under the terms of the original agreement, cancellation or at least drastic revision has been attained.

The British government said that the note lacks notification to the United States government. The payment will be the last Great Britain will make under the present agreement.

The government, however, means that the British government has renewed appeal to America for an early review of the entire debt problem.

CABINET SPLIT REVEALED

Several cabinet ministers were reported to have been in the dispatch of the British note to the United States on Sunday without the full cabinet's approval.

That note was unfortunately leaked to the press by one of the cabinet ministers, who are reported as fearing it served only to increase the pressure on the United States against further reduction of the war debt.

This complaint appeared first in the House of Commons in the morning's debate in the House of Commons, at which leaders of all the parties, including Neville Chamberlain, Stanley Baldwin, Lord Rothermere and Lloyd George.

France Must Pay Britain Chamberlain Declares

London, Dec. 13 (INS)—France must respect her war debt obligations to Great Britain, Chamberlain declared in the House of Commons.

His announcement was made in reply to Winston Churchill, former Chancellor, who had asked whether British could expect payment from the United States for not this country meets the war debt installment payments to the United States on Thursday.

Chamberlain refused Churchill's suggestion that the French Finance Minister in July, stating that Great Britain had no right to consider the French debt as part of the war loan cancellation of war reparations.

"But in the circumstances," the minister said, "Britain is unable to agree to definite modification of the Anglo-French financial agreement."

Stimson Sees Hoover About British Note

Washington, Dec. 13 (AP)—Secretary Stimson conferred with President Hoover briefly this morning before going to the State Department for study of the latest British debt note.

Arriving at the White House only a few minutes before the start of the day's session, Stimson attended the meeting. Stimson walked directly to the president's study.

Thousands of men and women face their FOURTH jobless Christmas.

There never was a better time to extend a helping hand. A dollar or two would be a god-send to many a deserving man or woman.

Prices of materials are extremely low and Director John J. Shields urges the people to take advantage of this fact and give repair and other odd jobs to the unemployed to make their holidays brighter.

The Municipal Employment Bureau is at 25 Church st., South End. Telephone Liberty 8607.

BRISBANE RADIO
FORUM READY

New York, Dec. 13.—Combined opinions of newspaper editors and newspaper readers will provide material on which J. V. Connolly will base his broadcast on "The most important stories of this year and next" over the Columbia Broadcasting System, Wednesday, at 4:45 p. m. E. S. T.

Sammy and His Debt Dodgers

Well, it looks as if the Payment Postponement will have to settle up on December 15, but they won't be strong enough to walk. They will be to be carried. Our old friends, Happy Hogan and St. assisted by that intelligent old Maud, have volunteered to help transport the boys to the cashier's window. It won't be long now. When the boys get the credit over they will be surprised to see how much better they feel. But naturally they are a little weak just now. The prospect of paying out all these good iron men is tough. They will have to postpone the next war for a while, which will be very annoying for them. They can fill in the time by trying to get Sam into the League of Nations. That's always an amusing indoor sport. Watch for our next intensive chapter.

FOES EAGER TO RUSH VOTE ON LEAGUE

Washington, Dec. 23 (U.S.)—Foes of the League Court in the Senate today accepted the challenge for an early vote on the proposal for American adherence.

The League Court issue was injected into the already heated action in the Senate by the demand of a bipartisan group headed by John W. Davis, Democratic presidential nominee in 1924 and then James G. Harbord of the Radio Corporation.

A group of present members consulted with Senator Borah of Idaho, chairman of the foreign relations committee, and found to their surprise this foe of the court was prepared to consider the proposition now.

"I am ready to take up the League Court at any time. From my viewpoint, I do not know of a more propitious time to consider it than now."

Court supporters were completely taken aback by the confident attitude of Borah, who is one of the opponents of the league court. He has the vote in support of the Borah-Harbord formula for American adherence.

Rejection of the court was predicted by Senator Watson of Indiana, Republican leader, who said: "Its advocates had better let the league court alone. If they bring it up at this session, they will be beaten."

HIGHER PAY IS ASTOR PLEA

New York, Dec. 23 (AP)—Lady Astor today took the floor at a national committee league meeting and delivered an impassioned attack on "cheap American labor."

The American-born member of the British House of Commons said:

"It is very difficult for us in Parliament to ask for a 15-hour week when our competitors in the United States are working up to that standard."

Denouncing the hours of labor in his country as the standard for the world, Lady Astor said:

"Children laboring 12 and 14 hours in the coal mines produce so cheaply that respectable textile unionists in Manchester cannot meet the market without being ruined by American labor."

Beck's Stand on Dry Law Attacked

Washington, Dec. 23 (AP)—Fred B. Perkins, former assistant district attorney at Providence, R. I., at the Antislavery League convention, attacked opinions of Rep. James M. Beck on how Congress could cut the country of prohibition.

Perkins, an intelligent people, would tolerate long to choose between Nicholas Murray Butler and James M. Beck on the one hand and Daniel Webster and Abraham Lincoln on the other.

Reciprocal Trade Urged by Sen. Hull

Washington, Dec. 23 (AP)—Steps to advance his proposal for reciprocal trade treaties with Canada and England are under consideration by Senator Charles McNary (D., Tenn.). He hopes to take them up publicly after the Christmas recess.

"The effect of the Ottawa conference," and the senator today to newspapermen, "was to restrict world trade as a whole instead of to encourage expansion."

ALL ABOARD FOR GOOD BENEFIT

Now that you've decided to go to Coronado Grove tomorrow night, where one of the best shows of the season will be staged for the benefit of the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund, you probably wonder if you'll have to dress up for the affair.

Of course you can, if you wish. But it is not necessary, and you will find plenty of your friends there who haven't bothered.

The show tomorrow night is intended primarily to offer all who would like to combine a night at Boston's premier night club with a pleasant giving to one of the most useful charities in the city an opportunity to do so at a reasonable cost.

For as low as $2.00 you can have a good dinner served in faultless manner. Then you can sit back and enjoy the first rate floor show and the very best of the musical waiting for the leading stars, vaudeville stars, who have promised to attend as an added attraction.

Coronado Grove is in Piedmont, about two minutes from Hotel Stetson. It is within easy reach of the theatrical district, and it will be worth your while to attend tomorrow night.

Remember, half the gross receipts go to the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund, no matter what you spend.

Don't Let Your $1 Bills Wear Out! Be a Goodfellow!

William S. Broughton, commissioner of the public debts, said recently at a hearing in Washington:

"The $1 bills now in circulation will wear out in nine months."

Imagine thrusting your hand into your pocket to reach for a bill you put there nine months ago to find out it had disappeared!

Think of the many things a dollar would buy just now in the Christmas season.

And then think of this: There is nothing you can do about $1 bills or any other kind of bills to make them last longer than nine months, unless you exchange them for something.

How would you like to exchange your dollar bill for something more enduring than gold, more precious than gems?

Something you can never lose? Something that will give you happiness every time you think of it?

WHY NOT DO THIS?

It can be done and very simply. Just take a dollar bill in your hand. Oh, if you have got a dollar bill, a 5, 10, 20, or even a hundred, it will be all right.

Then say to yourself: "If I keep this bill for nine months, it will wear out and I'll have nothing. Therefore, I will give it away to someone who needs it, and I will have something very valuable. And the most valuable thing in this Christmas season is the happiness of children whose special holiday Christmas Day is."

I shall give this bill, therefore, to the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Editor and tell him I want to help make the holiday, especially the children, very happy on Christmas Day.

The Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Editor knows thousands of children who will forget all their past hunger and suffering, at least for one day, if I am generous.

WAY TO HAPPINESS

Now, here goes. Nine months from now, I won't have this bill. My $1 won't have any. But if I have brought to children, will make me feel that I have done something worth while, something that will give me pleasure to remember about.

Try exchanging your bill for happiness today. The address of the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Editor is 5 Winslow St., Boston, U.S.A.

And that last driver, who probably has as much to give as I, will give me a new bill. I'll give it to one of the children, and I'll be happy. And I'll be happy. And I'll be happy.

And that last driver, who probably has as much to give as I, will give me a new bill. I'll give it to one of the children, and I'll be happy. And I'll be happy. And I'll be happy.

I tried to get a basket for Thanksgiving, but I failed, as a result we had only beans for dinner. Won't you please make this Christmas a happy one? There are five in our family, a boy of nine, a girl of six and the baby three years old. I am very handy in making clothes over. I hope you won't forget us. An anxious mother hoping to hear from you. Lynn Man Held in Series of Robberies

Quincy, N. H., Dec. 13 (AP)—John Peters, 20, of Lynn, was brought here for a hearing in Conway municipal court in connection with the robbery of nine stores in Conway about a week ago.

Time to try to keep things going. My husband does odd jobs when he can get them, such as white washing, refilling, painting and repairing rooms for the landlord. I help out with our real estate. I have a little girl 6 years old, who has been away all summer with measles, fever and is left with a weak heart. She is now going to school and is very thin. My daughter in 11 years old. She has been out of school for 3 months, due to rheumatic fever. She sits at times feels miserable. I am unable to give them the right nourishing that they should have. Anything you could do would be greatly appreciated.

'Wonder Boy's' Wizardry at Tech Makes Him Rhodes Honor Man

HOURS IN LABORATORY WIN SCHOLARSHIP FOR HIM
Ivan A. Gettings has proved again that there is something in a name and that he gets what he goes after. Getting, a Thomas A. Edison "Wonder Boy," is shown here in the laboratory at M.I.T., where he won the Edison scholarship. He was photographed while assembling a tube for studying positive ion currents near hot cathodes in gas discharges.

FROM BOOKS HE LEARNS WHAT WISE MEN LEARNED
Young Gettings spends many hours pouring over books, proving the theories he has and developing new ones. His home is in Pittsburgh, Pa., but because of his Tech college affiliation he comes within the allotment of New England in this year's Rhodes scholars. Four New England students are among the 12 Americans chosen to go to Oxford. (Staff photos)

RHODES CHOICE DELIGHTS TECH 'EDISON BOY'

"It's a great honor and I will try to live up to it," says Ivan A. Gettings, commenting today on his selection as one of four winners of Rhodes Scholarships in the New England district.

Getting, 21, senior at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, took his senior year in 1927 for 1928; he won the Thomas A. Edison Scholarship at Tech in competition with 18 other boys at the late school's laboratories in East Orange, New Jersey.

"It certainly is a thrill to know that next October I can start at Oxford University in England and keep on with my studies in physics," said Gettings, who is a son of Milan Gettings, former tech-Slovakian consul in Pittsburgh.

WILL WORK HARD
"For more than three years I have worked hard to justify Mr. Edison, choosing me for a scholarship here at Tech, and I intend to work just as hard at Oxford to justify this choice. I know I can do the work and I'm not worrying about it."

Since he was a boy in Seneca, High School at Pittsburgh, young Gettings has been winning scholarships, but he has found them nevertheless, to indulge in some athletics. Last spring he was elected captain of the M. I. T. basketball team and also won the M. I. T. letter.

He was valedictorian from high school, won highest honors and while president of his class. He came through the tricky Edison examination with flying colors and at Tech he is considered a promising physicist.

While in college he was at 71 Hopkins in Baltimore.

OTHERS TO OXFORD
When young Gettings starts for Oxford next October he will be accompanied by the other three New England winners, Owen F. Walker of Canton, O., a senior at Brown; John R. Broun of Farmington, Pa., a student at Wesleyan; and Arthur H. Brown of Bangor, Me., attending the University of Maine.

The scholarship, established by the will of Lord Rhodes, provides for two years of study at Oxford with options of a third year if academic requirements are met by the student.

KEY TO MYSTERY MURDER?

MRS. FRANCES SCHIDHAUER
Randmaster at Austin high school, Chicago, Capt. Schidhauer was kidnapped in front of his home last night. A bullet through the head, his body later was found in suburban Chicago. The fact that Mrs. Schidhauer apparently was the only witness to the kidnapping, yet failed to report it for an hour, has caused police to decide to question her.

K.O. WINEARNS SCHAAF SHOT AT PORED A

FANNING BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

With GEORGE UNDERWOOD

Well, Look Who's Here! Meet M'seu Primeau. That Famous Kid Line! Mit Young Conacher. Tiny Thompson Recurve! Harvey Jackson, Ton.

Heaven Help the Gals and the Goalies!

WELL, LOOK who's here! The Toronto Leafs and the famous Kid Line! A fortnight ago we Boston fans got an eyeful of that great front line of the Rangers, Bill and Bun Cook and Frankie Boucher. Tonight we'll get a look at the three marvelous juveniles. Joe Primeau, Harvey Jackson and Charlie Conacher, who last year outscored the noted Ranger veterans. So far this season the famous Ranger line has succeeded in keeping ahead of the great Kid Line of the Leafs. But the yearlings have warmed up now and their famous triple passing attack is beginning to make opposing defenses look just as sure like as last year. They Thompson son will have to be an Horatius at the Bridge to keep Primeau, Jackson and Conacher from "picking the biscuit" tonight. While you're waiting for the skirmishing lines to be thrown out let's have a closeup on that famous Kid Line. Here they are, faint, waiting to be introduced.

Mit M'seu Primeau, Fans and Fannies:

Ain't he cute, girls? Front handle Joe, Age 26. Weight 100. Curly black haired and with features that make the sweeties look at him with the come hither look in their eyes. But it doesn't do any good, girls, for M'seu Primeau is a happily married man and the proud parent of three wonderful little boys. Six years ago Joe wedded Miss Helen Mencher, one of the fairest belles in Rochester, and already they have been blessed with half a hockey team and hope to have a full sextet by the time Joe hangs up his stick. Joe's early hockey career was in the hands of the Saints. Anyway, Joe broke into hockey with the St. Francis Bantams of the Holy Name League of Toronto and then played with the St. Cecilia's St. Michael's and St. Mary's before landing with the Marlboros and stepping into the big league. Did you know that Joe almost became a Ranger? In fact, he was a Ranger, although he never got in a game for New York. While Connie Smythe was manager of the Rangers, Smythe signed Primeau to a New York contract. In the shift that brought Lester Patrick to New York and Smythe to Toronto, Connie insisted that as part of the deal he take young Primeau back to Toronto with him. Only for that you never would have heard of Toronto's famous Kid Line.

THAT YOU CAN play fast, clean, aggressive hockey without injecting barroom tactics into it is shown by this lightning fast and aggressive center man of the Leafs. Last year Primeau was awarded the Lady Byng Trophy, awarded to Canada's most sportsmanlike and valuable player. Off the ice M'seu Primeau is one of Toronto's loveliest and most businesslike young business men. He is a member of the firm of the Dundas Concrete Block Co. and is making good as a contractor as well as a hockey player. Joe is a fair roller and pitches on the Maple Leafs' soft-ball championship team.

Bad News for the Sweeties!

Girls, you're out of luck! Just when we were about to tell you it was open season on Harvey "Busher" Jackson, that streak of great lightning and bottled dynamite that has been lighting down the ice like a tongue of flame from the left wing of the Kid Line, we hear that Joe is on the verge of committing matrimony. The future Mrs. Jackson is one of Toronto's most beautiful belles, Miss Ruth Hutchinson. If Harvey makes good a husband as he does a hockey player what a squeeze he will be. This 21-year-old, 192-pound terror of the goalies last year led the league in scoring and was voted the best left wing in hockey. Watching Jackson play is getting a thrill a minute. Give him a hole big enough for a champagne to squeeze through and Harvey will crash it. And when he blows away at the goal, Mr. Conacher, Boston, what a wicked shot! Harvey was born and raised in the Runnymede district of Toronto, where many of the Toronto athletes come from. Joe is a good ball player, swimmer, rider and lacrosse player as well as being a hockey star. As a kid he starred for the Toronto Juniors. With Max Baer, Charlie Conacher and Eddie Convey made up a line that wrought as much havoc in amateur circles as the Primeau, Jackson and Conacher line is doing in the big league.

Last But Not Least, Lionel's Brother

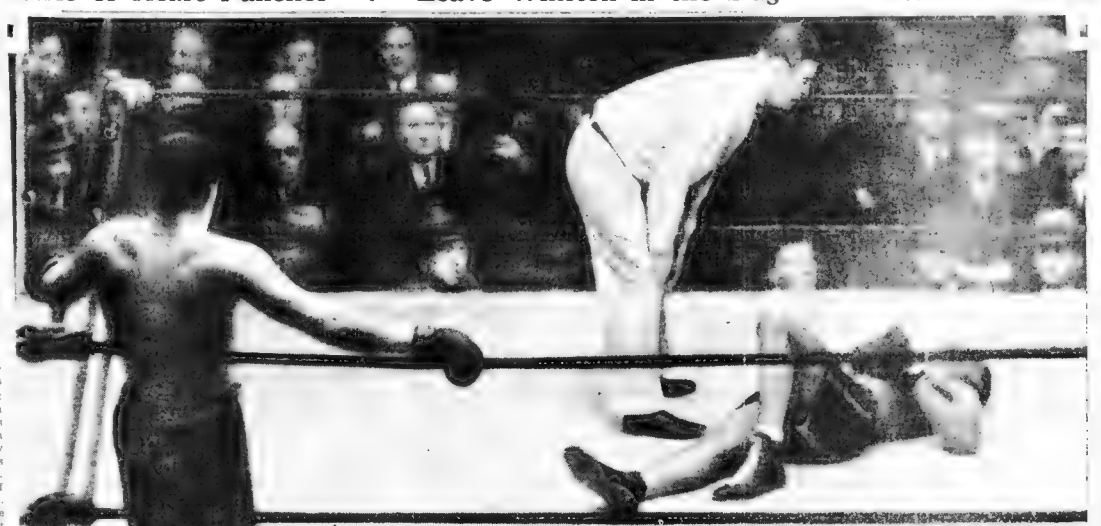

Last, but not least, friend fans, mit Charlie Conacher. He's almost as big and versatile as his older and perhaps more famous brother, Lionel. But give the kid a chance. He's only 23 and his best years are ahead of him. Already he is just as good a hockey player as Lionel ever was and he's getting better all the time. If he gets much better, heaven help the goalies! This 198-pound Hercules has about the wickedest shot in the league. His triple passing plays with Primeau and Jackson are a delight to the eye. Charlie is a product of the Marlboros, the same as his two mates on the great Kid Line. Several years ago Charlie was seriously injured in hockey and a most delicate operation was necessary. He still has to be careful of that injured back but that's why the big 198-pound right winger will not permit opposing players to get too racy with him. Pounding rough stuff on Charlie Conacher means war. Two years ago Charlie married Miss Naureen Pratt and they have a Charlie William Conacher, Jr., now as the apple of their eye. Watch young Charlie Jr.'s dad when they throw out the skirmishing lines in the Boston Garden tonight.

THE MARRY-GO-ROUND

By ELLEN C. ROWLAND

THE MARRY-GO-ROUND is a story of the lives of a group of people who are living in a world of their own making. It is a story of the struggles of a group of people who are living in a world of their own making.

Public opinion has ceased to hold them, many a disillusioned page along cheerfully side by side, without quite knowing why.

A little was missed, for or a little more was a cold man's.

That do thousands of married people past the breaking point—well, they "lick" again and again. Which is cheering thought for those about to take the plunge.

TRAVELING THE ROAD TO SARTORIAL DISASTER

The girl who won't take time to be graceful.

The girl who rubs on the cold cream as if she had a grudge against herself.

IT ISN'T SO MUCH how you look today; how will you look tomorrow? . . . The girl who slumps is developing a lump on the back of her neck and letting her muscles sag . . . The girl who won't take time to be graceful is wearing herself out but by bit and getting unpleasantly angular . . . And as for the woman or girl who slouches, her backbone will never get straightened out. Well, we won't see one of them for a long time, either; they're committing such crimes against their health, in say nothing of grace and fashion . . . Uncertain heels can spoil any costume and the wearer's posture and poise.

Wrinkles come soon enough without rubbing them in.

"GENTLY, Sister, pray!"

uncontrolled or driven by a maniac. It came crani ally after absorbing that Ellen was more frightened than bold.

But the occupant of the guilty car lay helplessly tangled in the wreckage. Tossed on the ground were an empty bottle, a suitcase and a Curtis emblem.

Danny "Curtis" mumbled, "Of course they did it purposefully," declared Tom. They probably arrived with the team this afternoon, spotted us and trusted us. Look at it if they got the word of it themselves."

"What's the fellow who followed us into the arena and then disappeared?" and Mabel. "Thank God they didn't shoot our show!"

"Of the same tomorrow," said Ellen, nodding Danny's relieved exclamation.

"Don't you know me without the mud on my face?" asked the driver.

Ellen looked annoyed and explained quickly. "She's the comedienne of the company."

"Now why did you have to tell them I'm one of the comedienne?" They talked were a couple of minutes.

"We're taking a walk and thought we'd come in and see," Ellen explained.

"And since when do girls go prowling around the university campus?" he inquired.

"Has permission," Mabel retorted laughingly. "We've been rehearsing in the University Theater and a man there suggested that we look around this afternoon. We've been to the chapel, the library, the museum, from the bowling we heard of one, we thought this must be the place."

"Don't let me rub the mud on the woods fairy gave us," said Ellen. They did and "mysteriously" they lost their disguises as red faces and blushing girls.

But here in the wonderful part of the life wasn't the old, gray, wrinkled doll she had been, but the beautiful legs that the fairy had touched in Santa's toyshop.

She and Funchino were so happy that they clasped hands and danced right there.

Admitted all about them the trees changed from and there stood three or four hundred people and dolls and animals in the woods. They had all been withered at one time or another by the witch, and now they and Funchino had freed them.

"We used to have egg noodle dishes once in a while, you know, but what a difference it made to take your advice and insist on Mueller's! You should have seen Harry's eyes sparkle when I served noodle pudding last night! It looked so appetizing. And when he tasted its flavor he began to compliment me right away! But the best compliment came when both he and Bobbie were so keen on having another helping, telling me how deliciously light and tender it was."

These are the kind of comments that explain why more people choose Mueller's than any other brand. See for yourself what a difference it makes if you ask for Mueller's. Besides appetizing appearance, delicious flavor and perfect tenderness, it is richest in nourishment and easiest to digest.

BLESS THE DEAR old reliable Boston Elevated trolley cars! What a comfort they were yesterday morning as we sailed along, bell clanging, warm, dry and comfortable in spite of the cold and sleet outside.

We had started out in the Buck but were forced to turn back because of mud freezing to the windshield and several cars skidding along the highway in a most alarming manner. To be sure, we had to wait 10 minutes on a cold and windy corner but there is more a more delightful sensation than climbing onto a nice warm street car when nose, ears and finger-tips are beginning to tingle.

MRS. WILLIAM DANA ORCUTT has a small of stove and that the bakery-cart man will bring up the morning milk with the doughnuts. This little old man is all set for the winter. . . and was he pleased?

The plump lady in front of us was relieved that she had invited the whole family for Christmas. Effie and her children, Ray and Virginia who have just been married, Ma and Pa who live in Wollaston and Jim's folks. . . AND they had all refused. . . and was SHE glad? Effie's children were devils, anyway, and she was positively SPOILING them. . . would you believe it, they were wearing the brand new paper suit that she sent to them to SCHOOL. . .

By the time we reached the Hotel Statler for our "Literary Map of Europe" morning, we felt that we could write a book about real people that would make you laugh a lot and cry a little. . . we are much too lazy really to even attempt it.

Many Hear Literary Talks

IN SPITE OF the inclement weather, the foveer of the ballroom was comfortably crowded. . . Miss Emma Mills mounted the dais and commenced her pleasing talk on what is being done among the authors abroad. . . We were simply thrilled when she mentioned that Willa Cather's "Shadows on the Rock" was awarded the exchange prize, Pre-Femina-Americana we think she called it, this year. . . the first year that France and America have exchanged literary prizes.

We have rarely ever read a book which we enjoyed as we did this tale of old Quebec. . . its haunting charm will remain with us always. . .

It was interesting also to hear that another writer whom we admire, Aldous Huxley, has been converted to Catholicism. . . we have always felt he had deep religious feeling, notwithstanding his extravagant naked style. . . "Point Counterpoint" has always been a favorite book to re-read with us. . .

Miss Mills introduced a refreshing Englishman, Langdon Davis, who has come under the romantic and emotional Spanish influence. . . a typical Boston audience found him amusing but not convincing. . . the idea of a Boston lady hissing a Symphony concert was just TOO fantastic. . . It is done in Spain, it is related. He said that European audiences, meaning us, as well, are vociferous. . . and did we suddenly applaud his courage. . . The wonder was that said audience did not file out on him in a body but he was too dynamic. . . they merely applauded, and will try and forget all about him.

Sketches of Famous Persons

JOHN WHITE WATERS, artist, was the next speaker and his word sketches of famous literary people he has modeled were highly interesting and entertaining. . . He spoke feelingly of General Pershing, whose bust he sculptured last year. . . mentioning particularly Pershing's beautiful smile. "No soldier in Europe has the kind of smile that General Pershing has," he remarked. "Some are cynical, some polite, others cold, but his general's is the sort that says 'War is just a kind of measles and chicken-pox thing. . . countries must have them and get over them. . . someday they will grow up and then war will not be.' That was very discerning, wasn't it?"

Of course, Mrs. William Dana Orcutt was in the front row, listening attentively to every word. . .

Mrs. J. Mott Hollowell caught the humor of many a situation as she sat with her daughter, Mrs. Henry Hecksher (Nancy Hollowell), charmingly costumed in gray with garnet hat. . .

Nancy finds life very exciting keeping house, attending University Extension courses, Mrs. HECKSCHER in Fine Arts and Psychology, and entertaining no end in her darling apartment. . . sweet girl, Nancy Hecksher.

Mrs. Charles Johnson, in pink and Mr. Parker Whittington chatted with friends in their red costume. . . It was a morning well spent. . . and we look forward to the next.

THREE WOMEN

Louisa Scolds Elizabeth Severely

In her own room, Louisa scolded, waving her foot against the window seat, the sun on her dark hair, blue eyes a-
"You've asked her?" Joyce questioned her mother.
"Yes," said Louisa, "and unwillingly to confess failure, along her path of least resistance, the beauty retreat. I didn't understand. It's not a very nice house, dear, and there's plenty of time for house parties—don't be so disappointed."

Joyce nodded. "I'll see if I can't do better," she said, and then she went to her room. Louisa, who was part of her of course, went to her room. Louisa, who was part of her of course, went to her room. Louisa, who was part of her of course, went to her room.

It was then, when Joyce was alone, that Elizabeth came in. "I've been thinking about you," she said. "I've been thinking about you," she said. "I've been thinking about you," she said.

She began to go to Joyce's room. "I'll see if I can't do better," she said. "I'll see if I can't do better," she said. "I'll see if I can't do better," she said.

At the time, Joyce was alone in her room. "I'll see if I can't do better," she said. "I'll see if I can't do better," she said. "I'll see if I can't do better," she said.

Fur Used Lavishly in Combinations on the New Ensembles

PARIS DRESSER—Two kinds of fur are better than one. At least, this is the current idea of the fashion designers. Costly dress—often made in make-up to make an all-around suit for afternoon wear.

One of the types is a black and white fur, especially black fox and white fox used together, as considered especially smart for afternoon wear.

Another type is a black and white fur, especially black fox and white fox used together, as considered especially smart for afternoon wear.

Nothing equals fur in favor of evening wear. "I'll see if I can't do better," she said. "I'll see if I can't do better," she said. "I'll see if I can't do better," she said.

Graduations in Martha Lee School

Two kinds and two colors of fur are used in this Miranda suit. Black astrakhan makes the collar and revers on the jacket and fashions the sleeves that cover the wrists. And the blouse is made of white fur.

A special treat is promised by the appearance of stage stars. The manager of the RKO Keiths Theatre, who is in charge of the school, will receive diplomas at graduation exercises.

As if pushing away a cloud of thought, she said, "I'll see if I can't do better," she said. "I'll see if I can't do better," she said. "I'll see if I can't do better," she said.

We certainly appreciate the generous cooperation of the folks who are contributing to the entertainment, refreshments and gifts for our graduation exercises.

From the Sunshine Bakers of the Lons-Wires Company come the apples, the cream, and the ice cream.

They Know They're Told
Our city marshal, John Tilden, returned Tuesday from Bellevue, where he visited his old stomping grounds. John showed us some corn he picked on the old Tilden farm, and as we looked at John and the corn the thought came to our mind that this particular farm must have the reputation of raising big corn. This year the crop is wonderful and many people wonder what we are going to do with this great surplus of corn. We put the question to John and he certainly answered us in a manner when he said: "We can be damn glad we have got it."

"I mean is what I say," declared Fishy, "and there are no ifs or buts about it—no strings attached in a shape, manner or form. But I don't want a gift to everyone, since because I do not know all the men and addresses. Do you realize that the population of our country is now more than 100,000,000? Not to mention my original position. I'd like to exchange gifts with every one. I'd like to send out and oranges to all the farmers. Jewels and lingerie to all the ladies—regardless of color creed. Cigars and neckties for them? And I would, too. If I had addresses. However, it is simpler for everybody else to reach a idea—the Christmas spirit. A address is just plain Hoaxey. Nature's Wonderful Plan

How Well She Designed These Creatures
That Live, and Jump, Bounce Us on the Other Side of the World

GRACEFUL KANGAROOS, MARVELS OF NATURE'S
HANDIWORK, LEAPING A WIDE GULLY

Have you ever seen excelled the perfect grace and ease exhibited by these jumping kangaroos?

They live "down under," as the British call it, around on the other side of the world, just below our feet.

When they are resting on the ground the soles of their feet point to the soles of your feet.

Once upon a time, when men thought the earth was flat, they wouldn't have believed that.

They would have said, "Why, if those kangaroos were standing head downward they would fall off." But they don't fall off. Gravitation, that makes everything "lend" toward the earth's center, holds them as it holds us and as it holds the great cathedral that points to our sky at night and twelve hours later will have its steeple pointing in exactly the opposite direction.

The graceful, powerful kangaroo, not knowing whether he is "on top of the world" or "down under," leads a cheerful life except when Englishmen, who "must have their sports," pursue him.

Even then the kangaroo has a fighting chance.

In this picture you see that the creatures, so beautiful in motion, jumping a wide gully to escape men pursuing on horseback.

As you look at the picture you marvel at the creatures' grace and Nature's wonderful adaptation of living forms to their environment.

A lobster crawling along the ocean's bed in search of shellfish, the devilfish with its many arms reaching under the shelving rocks to get the lobster, the whale plowing through the Arctic Sea, the eagle high in air, the snake wriggling through the grass, and man, standing erect, balanced on two small feet, all illustrate marvellously Nature's power of adaptation.

See how, through necessity and the struggle for existence, the kangaroo has gradually grown to its present shape. The kangaroos are sure of little use except to hold the kangaroo baby and convey food to its own mouth. It depends on the powerful hind legs for defense and for escape when pursued.

All the driving power is in the hindquarters, and it is the same with the horse, by the way. The hind legs do all the horse's galloping, propelling it forward; the front legs are there merely to hold up the animal after each galloping jump.

Admire Nature's wisdom, admire the strange animals, kangaroo, ornithomachus, etc., that live eight thousand miles below the sole of your foot. The kangaroos are of many kinds, ranging in size from that of a rabbit to the giant "marsupial" six feet tall.

Like all other animals of the great Australian island-continent, they are gentle. Let them alone and they let you alone. The human "sportsman" can let alone nothing that he alone can be killed "for pleasure."

In all the great expanse of Australia, when Europeans first visited it, there was, except the barbarous natives, no animal that killed any other: no wolves, foxes, panthers or other "meat eaters."

Everything was gentle, as in the Garden of Eden. It is not so now.

More Mail, More Business

A Barometer of Prosperity

In the days when Calvin Coolidge was President and times were good the postal receipts were everywhere accepted as the unfailing barometer of the business conditions of this country.

Well, let's go to them again and see what we find.

We find, much to our gratification, that the postal receipts of the Boston area increased by NEARLY EIGHT PER CENT last month over the corresponding period a year ago.

This was an extraordinarily large gain because the postal receipts of Boston were $1,500,000 and we are one of the largest postal areas in this country.

More mail means more business. It means that the manufacturing and commercial houses are corresponding with each other again, placing new orders and negotiating new contracts. This, in turn, means increased employment.

There is at least a better and more optimistic atmosphere than a year ago. Let us all be confident in the hope and expectation that the unusually large gain in the postal business of Boston is again the unfailing barometer which tells of the revived march to normal conditions.

Sammy Claus Doesn't Come Down Those Chimneys

And notes requesting visits there

New York Day by Day

My Lady Nicotine

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—Writers are the most devoted worshippers of My Lady Nicotine. In earlier days, Booth Tarkington carried essential by long-stated cigarettes in a huge leather case. Wherever he went, he had 100 or more on tap. Ten large for a pocket, the case was tucked under his arm.

Arthur Somers Roche, at his typewriter, lights one after another, taking only one or two quick inhales from each. William McHarg rolls at least four cigars before arising. Irving Cobb indulges in fierce black cigars, tilted at a Joe Cannon angle. About six a day.

Sinclair Lewis switches from cigars to cigars and pipes and, when fishing, chews the weed. Henry Menckens puffs corn-cobs. Christopher Morley for a pipe. A picture of Morley without his well-blackened hair would be something for the collector.

Theodore Dreiser is a pipe-smoker at the typewriter, as are G. K. Chesterton, Hilaire Belloc and most top-notch English writers. Michael Arlen smokes gold-tipped cigars through a long holder and was first with the now ancient wheeze: his doctor ordered him "to keep away from cigars."

Among literary ladies, Kathleen Norris is a non-smoker, although smoking is not so pronounced among the feminine fraternity. Many, like Edna Ferber and Katharine Brush, only puff a cigarette with their after-dinner coffee. The late poet, Amy Lowell, affected small-sized cups, but had half-holding for the collector.

A relic of early simplicities is a faded parchment board at which Grandma and I gathered once a week in the pallid spitter of the hanging lamp in the sitting room. The contest was on Saturday night so as not to interfere with school study. It seemed fun to win from a defeated, an earnest player, who, on a night when even such inconspicuous spectacles and abandon her diurnal dignity to exclaim: "Pshaw, take the luck!" Looking back, I cannot understand why I permitted myself to win when even such inconspicuous victory meant so much in her colorless life.

There is not likely a movie star of yesterday's fame who is not a fully withstood imprints of time as Thomas Meighan. He is not a doddler by any means. Indeed, he is erect, clear-eyed and has a gringer, but he has many current vice of a young industry. Meighan's best remembered forces in the films were in the screening of George Ade's fables.

The story best expressing American democracy, to me, is Montague Glass's tale of Lady Guinevere de-Perster Chumley-Chumley. On a visit to the States, she dropped in one afternoon at a neighbor's for her son. To the last answering the door-pull she inquired: "Is the Right Honorable Montague Chumley-Chumley here?" The boy turned and called into the house: "O, Stinker, your mother want you."

A number of us not privileged to attend college are likely unitedly contemptuous of life in high society. I am conscious of a particularly sweet depravity in a high-society snuff for Harvard. I never met a Harvard man who didn't give a feeling he had the edge on me. That is why I did a misup last night reading in memoirs of Sansa. He fled back to Oxford because he found Harvard crude.

I might sneeze in, also, it is a Harvard upstart, who's visiting Plattsburg, Mo., where I was born and Gallipoli, O., where I was reared, postcarded: "One looks powerless to be born, and in the ether, they don't bury their dead. They walk around."

The Wrestling Match

Two men of giant frames began
To clasp each other, man to man;
To slam, as one might slam a door,
Each other on the canvas floor.

One held his rival high in air
And twined him like a lariat there,
With mighty fling from thigh and heel
He tossed him like a sack of meal.

Then leaped, as angry bears attack,
To pin his foeman on his back.
A mighty kick, with skill designed,
Contrived to change the fellow's mind.

For five and thirty minutes long
The wrestlers grained to please the throng.
They hauled and twisted, jumped and clawed,
And grinned to hear the crowd applaud.

It seemed to each wrestler's whim
To tear the other limb from limb.
I wondered was this thing the chase
In Rome and Nero's circus days.

The English Note: Dignified U. S. Reply

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Boston Evening American.

TO THE AVERAGE AMERICAN the British note, announced by England to make her payment on the 15th, seems all but incredible. England has asked a reconsideration of her debt because of abnormal conditions affecting her, and this appeal had received a sympathetic hearing among those opposed to the cancellation or transfer of the debts. It has been made quite clear by us that Congress alone has the power to transfer all, or any part of the debt to the American taxpayer; that the United States by England to make her payment on the 15th, according to the contract, would greatly prejudice the move for a reconsideration of her settlement; that the payment would facilitate it.

Under these circumstances it must be amazing to the average American to read in the English note that the payment offered is not to be regarded as resumption of the annual payments contemplated in the existing agreement, and that England proposes that the payment be considered as "a capital payment of which account should be taken in the final settlement."

The acceptance of the payment by this provision would be an acceptance of the English provision, and would mean a surrender of the honor of the determination of our own future policy. It is a circumstance Secretary Stimson has acted with celerity, dignity and decision; for within an hour England knew that we could not accept London's interpretation of the meaning of the payment. He merely served to state that should have been unnecessary until an agreement is revised, it exists.

The Debt Was Paid

We had such serious trouble with the debt in the days of Jefferson, because of her intervention in the interest of another nation, that war seemed certain, and Jefferson consulted his cabinet on the wisdom of an English alliance. The battle of Trafalgar, which diverted France's attention from the debt, that prospect. But for the triumph at Trafalgar there might have been a change that would have altered the course of history.

When the debt of Jackson was on the verge of war, because of a French debt. The last war against us now was then heard in the French parliament, diplomatic relations in London were on the verge of war, because of a French debt. The last war against us now was then heard in the French parliament, diplomatic relations in London were on the verge of war, because of a French debt.

We were not close to war because of the debt, but because of French public men threatened us with war; and, of course, there will be war now. Then came the French defiance of the Monroe doctrine. Napoleon the Little marched his troops into Mexico to hold millions of men against the United States. He took advantage of our domestic dissension, and he was drawing to a close and we were preparing to withdraw from Mexico. Napoleon withdrew, and so was just too bad for Mexico.

And yet we have it from London that the Stimson note "takes Britain entirely unaware" of the United States. It is as confusing to commensurate as the experiences of Alice in Wonderland.

However, Mr. Stimson had indicated a way out for the English.

Unfortunate for England

Will she take it? There are indications that she may, and the reason is that no longer can there be any doubt that there has been an understanding between England and France, and the debtors, to act in union to force the transfer of the debts. This is unfortunate for England; it is not for France, for the English relations so much desired.

There are no such symptoms of the debt controversy. The real reason is that the English demands for further action on the debt have been met by the American people as there is for the English, is that France can see that France is stronger than that compared with the United States.

Who was the greatest opera singer of the world?

By DR. CHARLES HENKINOT, Head of the Department of Music. There cannot be much doubt but that Wagner was the greatest opera composer of all time and countries. Wagner was a German, and he succeeded in theory and practice in carrying out his aim, namely, the creation of a masterpiece, unobtainable from the historic standpoint and the musical standpoint.
